

Baltimore Sends Diverse Delegation to Denver

By Sean Yoes and Tiffany Ginyard

AFRO Staff Writers

Seventeen delegates and four alternates from Baltimore will represent the city's Democratic Party at the Democratic National Convention in Denver, Aug. 25-28.

Baltimore's Democratic delegation includes grassroots organizers, community activists, members of the Baltimore City Council, Maryland General Assembly, U.S. House of Representatives and the U.S. Senate.

See list of delegates from Baltimore.

List of Baltimore Delegates to Democratic National Convention

Ida Bailey-Jones

Alternate Clinton Delegate; works in the office of Maryland Comptroller Peter Franchot.

Marietta English

Clinton Delegate; in May, English won fifth term as president of Baltimore Teachers Union; began teaching in Baltimore City schools in 1968.

Stephanie Farquhar

Alternate Obama Delegate; researcher, PhD. candidate, Johns Hopkins University.

Sandra Hillman

Clinton Delegate; advertising executive, founder Sandy Hillman Communications.

Dr. Loretta Johnson

Clinton Delegate; president of Baltimore Teachers Union paraprofessional chapter since the 1970's.

Jon Laria

Clinton Delegate; real estate attorney, Ballard, Spahr, Andrews and Ingersoll.

Glenard Middleton Sr.

Obama Delegate; executive director, Maryland Council 67 (AFSCME), vice-president of the Maryland-DC AFL-CIO.

Kwame Rich

Alternate Obama Delegate; develops programs for troubled youth in Baltimore City.

Robert Yochem

Alternate Obama Delegate; stem cell scientist, Johns Hopkins University.

Del. Curt Anderson (Obama Delegate)

Mayor Sheila Dixon (Obama Delegate)

State Sen. Catherine Pugh (Clinton Delegate)

Councilmember Jack Young (Clinton Delegate)

Councilmember Helen Holton (Obama Delegate)

State Sen. Lisa Gladden (Obama Delegate)

State Sen. Verna Jones (Obama Delegate)

U.S. Sen. Barbara Mikulski (Clinton Delegate)

State Sen. Nathaniel McFadden (Obama Delegate)

Former Councilmember Keiffer Mitchell (Obama Delegate)

Del. Maggie McIntosh (Clinton Delegate)

Del. Cheryl Glenn (Obama Delegate)